MAKURA ARRIVES NEW GREAT NORTHERN SCHEDULE AFTER FAST VOYAGE

GIVES FOUR DAYS IN THIS PORT

F. L. Waldron Back With News of Improved Mail Service to Islands

With three first-cabin and 16 second-cabin passengers for Honolulu the Canadian-Australasian steamer Makura, Capt. J. D. S. Phillips, arrived off port at 1 o'clock this morning and docked at Pier 7 at 7:30 a. m. She made the trip from Vancouver in six days 16 hours and 30 minutes, and departed for Sydney at 11 a. m., remaining here only three hours and a half.

The Makura brought 67 bags of mail for Honolulu and one for Fanning Island. Freight for Honolulu was only five tons and as she is full up, that will be all she can take from here for Sydney, although there are over 50 tons waiting shipment.

The three cabin passengers for Honolulu were F. L. Waldron and his two sons, Stanley and Redvers, who have been attending school at the Hitchcock Military Academy, California.

A very interesting group of passengers for Sydney on the Makura were 30 glass-blowers who have been collected from all over the United States and are being sent to Melbourne to help in the glass business there. Most of the expert work was done by Germans before the war, but they are out of it now.

A day out from Victoria the wireless operator copied news despatches from Awanui, New Zealand, a distance of 4900 miles, and from Balboa, Panama, 6000 miles away.

A new third officer was on board this trip, S. L. Singleton, taking the place of S. L. Drever, taken ill.

Through passengers on the Makura number 20 first cabin, 57 second and 20 steerage.

The trip from Vancouver was the pleasantest that the Makura has made for some time. Good time was made on the voyage, and on the third day out they logged 420 miles, which is very exceptional. According to Purser W. G. Barnett, the midnight sun this year is very fine. The sun now sets at 8:30 p. m. and rises again at midnight.

Nine people will take the Makura here for Sydney, among whom is Sir William Cooper, who had to leave the Makura here on her last trip because of a slight accident which happened to him a day before the boat arrived. Sir William, who is a millionaire of Melbourne, was on the way to England, but has given up the trip.

The Makua is expected to arrive here some time Friday, probably about noon.

Section by Fenton's friends, who had accompanied him to court. They appealed to the prosecution, the captain of detectives, the judge and the deputy sheriff, but all the officials stood firm.

"If those fellows could come here and beat up a woman just to be discharged because their boat was leaving certainly law and order wouldn't stand very high in the eyes of visitors," said Deputy Sheriff Asch. "It will be a good lesson for Fenton and the rest of them."

The Inter-Island steamer Waialeale will leave for Kauai tomorrow.

The Maui reported that there is still 5000 bags of Grove Farm sugar at Amakini landing.
